ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Publication of this third edition of the manual was achieved through the coordinated efforts of several State agencies. The Department of State Planning wishes to acknowledge the assistance and advice rendered by the following, without whose help the task would have been immeasurably more difficult.

The State Roads Commission and George W. Cassell, Chief, Bureau of Highway Statistics, Division of Planning, assumed the responsibility of scanning the latest maps in search of new places and assigned Fred Settan to scan the maps with his abundant first-hand knowledge of place names throughout Maryland. The State Roads Commission also contributed the Maryland Official Highway Map included as part of this publication.

The Maryland Department of Employment Security accomplished the initial processing of data through the offices and efforts of Edward J. Stricker, Unemployment Insurance Director, and Bernard B. Snyder, Data Processing Manager, who provided the necessary personnel and data processing equipment; Carmen Carter, Analyst II, and Mrs. Edna M. Letsch, Data Processing Programmer III, provided technical assistance.

The Data Processing Administration, Department of Budget and Procurement, under Basil J. Wisner, processed the place names in tabular form for this manual.

INTRODUCTION

This manual embodies a simplified method for locating some 11,340 places within the State. It is the third edition of the original publication first printed in 1947; the second edition was published in 1962. The ever present dynamic elements of population growth and accompanying extensive physical developments within the State necessitate an updating. This new manual reflects the changing Maryland as characterized by population migrations, intensive housing developments, industrial growth, recreational development, recognition of historical architecture and landmarks, the obliteration of some traditional, and the establishment of new landmarks to such an extent that recognition of these new and changing developments has become essential.

The material contained in the manual has been reproduced by data processing equipment from data cards whose flexibility permits continued reuse, addition of new material, removal of obsolete data, and alternate methods of processing at a minimum of time and expense.

Compiled and printed in a form convenient for field use, this third edition has updated existing material on place names, railroad stations and housing subdivisions, has maintained the basic concept and format of identification with political subdivisions from the second edition, while incorporating several new features. This updating is intended to enhance its practical utility. Two new sections were added in place of the Numbered Highways Listing. One section is for public open space and recreational facilities, the other is for historical architectural structures and landmarks, each with an alphabetical listing, location, and a classification identifier. In the listings the retention of the last known place name together with the current name is a unique feature with this third edition. So is the retention of non-existent place names and railroad stations for historical documentation and reference. In the absence of an officially updated U. S. census of population, the list of incorporated and unincorporated places in Maryland with 1960 census population is reprinted.

A copy of the Maryland Official Highway Map issued by the State Roads Commission is an indispensable second part of this manual for locating a place name and planning the journey to it. Locating the place name can be conveniently accomplished with the grid system used in the manual and defined on the following page.

THE MARYLAND COORDINATE SYSTEM

The Maryland Coordinate Grid System is the method to identify a place name numerically and locate it on a map of the State. The grid coordinate system of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey was adopted for the State of Maryland by authority of Chapter 628 of the Acts of the Maryland General Assembly of 1939. This system, known as the Maryland Coordinate System, has been utilized in the preparation of the manual.

The principle of this system is the same as that used for locating a point on the surface of the earth by longitude and latitude, but in practice it is simpler. In the longitude-latitude method, a point is defined in degrees, minutes, and seconds to represent its distances from the meridian of Greenwich and the equator; whereas, in the system of plane coordinates used herein, a point is designated by actual distances in feet from two imaginary lines, one running east and west, and the other north and south through the point of origin.

The origin of the Maryland Coordinate System has been fixed at a point southwest of the State to have all coordinates to the east and north of it. The coordinates of this point are 0-0. Horizontal and vertical grid lines were established from this point as shown on the accompanying Maryland Official Highway Map prepared by the State Roads Commission. The lines are spaced at intervals of 50,000 feet bearing due east and due north from the point of origin. Other maps can be used by superimposing a similar grid on any map of Maryland. Referenced to the same point of origin, it then becomes possible to define any place shown on the map or to find any place on the map if its coordinates are known.

Two numbers define each place in the alphabetical listing which follows. The first number designates the distance in thousands of feet that the place lies east of the point of origin, and the second, the distance in thousands of feet that the place lies north of the point of origin. The coordinates are given only to the nearest thousand feet, which is adequate for purposes of identification on the Highway Map. As an illustration of the use of plane coordinates we will locate the U. S. Naval Academy. From the listing of place names in this manual we obtain the coordinates of the U. S. Naval Academy as 949-418. Then refer to the map of Maryland on the next page with a coordinate grid system superimposed. Plotting the coordinates taken from the listing, we locate the Naval Academy at a distance of approximately 949,000 feet to the east and approximately 418,000 feet to the north of the point of origin.

Should it be necessary to establish the location of a place name that falls between any two grid lines on a map, proceed by scaling or gauging the distance from the lowest numbered coordinate line. However, if the place name is not shown on the map it can readily be located by simple scaling from the nearest two grid lines.

GENERAL ALPHABETICAL LISTING OF PLACES

This third edition listing continues the format of listing cities, towns, and known place names used in both previous publications. However, in order to make it as accurate, complete, and up to date as possible the material in the former manual was reviewed thoroughly, known names of places no longer existing were removed or identified for historical reference, known grammatical and spelling errors were corrected, superfluous data eliminated, and names of new places obtained by scanning the most recent maps were added. Where place names have changed, the former name was retained, listed immediately after the current place name regardless of its spelling, and identified with a double asterisk (). Place names no longer in existence are recorded for historical documentation and preceded with three mathematical addition signs (+++) for identification. The appearance of the word Elevation following a place name designates a known terrestial high point, i.e., the top of a mountain or the highest local terrain in the coastal plain.

From the first publication of 12,000 place names, deletions and additions produced some 11,000 names in the second edition, and further refinements resulted in 10,823 place names in this third edition, excluding names of railroad stations. For the first time the General Alphabetical Listing of places contains names of public open space and recreational areas, historical architectural structures, and historical landmarks. Furthermore, these three groups, together with new and previous housing developments, are listed separately in the Appendix. The level or ownership of public open space and recreational areas are identified by the use of such words as State and National in the name, or the abbreviation CNTY following the place name to designate County. Municipal recreational areas are recognized by their absence of word identifiers. Historical place names are classified as to public, semi-public, business office or private, regarding their availability to sightseers, and these words appear in the printed form with the place name. The premises of any place name classified as business or private is not open to tourists, vistors, or the general public, while public and semi-public places may have restrictions that must be adhered to.

ALPHABETICAL LISTING OF PLACES BY COUNTY

This additional listing of places by county provides a convenient means for locating places within specified counties and Baltimore City. It offers an alternative to the General Alphabetical Listing of Places with its intensive concentration of place names related to one political jurisdiction within the State.

The county abbreviations shown in the previous listing have been omitted for obvious reasons, and the full name of the county in which the places are located is shown at the top of each individual page.

Here, and as described in the preface to the General Alphabetical Listing of Place names, symbols, words, or an abbreviation are utilized as identifiers with different connotations. See the preface to the section entitled General Alphabetical Listing of Places for meaning of the double asterisk () preceding a place name, three mathematical addition signs (+++) preceding a place name, the words national, state, the abbreviation CNTY, for county, public, semi-public, business, and private. The last four words have varying restrictions that the user of this manual must adhere to.

APPENDIX

HISTORICAL ARCHITECTURE AND LANDMARKS

Listed for the first time in the history of the Manual of Coordinates for Maryland are existing historical architectural facilities and historical landmarks of places, building, or sites of exceptional interest that represent the State's cultural heritage over the years, beginning from Colonial days. The list was prepared by the Maryland Historical Trust under supervision of the Governor's Liaison Officer as inventory nominations from the State of Maryland to the National Register of Historic Places for national acceptance and recognition. The National Register of Historic Places is a publication administered by the Office of Archeology and Historical Preservation, a division of the National Parks Service. The National Register was created under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, Public Law 89-665.

The listed historical architecture and landmarks represent public or private ownership with utilization of the facility or site ranging from public to private. All listings are classified as public, semi-public, business office, or private regarding their availability to sightseers, and these words appear in the printed form immediately after the place name. The premises of any listed place name classified as business or private is not open to tourists, visitors or the general public, whereas public and semi-public places may have restrictions that must be adhered to.

HOUSING SUBDIVISIONS AND DEVELOPMENTS

Nothing has characterized the changing Maryland topography more in the post-war years than the increasing number of sprawling housing and most recently the new cities developments dotting the State's landscape. This housing growth reflects the continuous population increases from 1950 to 1967 through natural causes of propagation and mortality coupled with migrations into the State. The average annual percentage increase in Maryland's population from 1960 to 1967 was 2.4 while that for the United States as a whole was only 1.4 per cent, according to the U. S. Bureau of Census July 1967 estimate.

Because of the permanent nature of these landscape changes and the high rate of population increase associated with it, the inclusion of housing developments and subdivisions listing was continued as a service of convenience and a ready reference for the inquirer.

RAILROAD STATIONS

The railroad, once a proud symbol and a vital key in the development of the American economy, is in a dynamic state of adjustment with other modes of transportation. In contrast to other physical developments in the State, the number of railroads operating and the number of railroad stations open have continued to decline.

With the first publication of the manual in 1947, 8 individual railroads were operating in Maryland, serving the public with 650 railroad stations to accommodate passengers and freight. The revised second edition of the manual in 1962 listed 6 individual railroads operating, with 517 stations. This updated third edition of 1969 lists 5 individual railroads, with 357 railroad stations or stops, of which 39 stations are listed as passenger stops. Since the 1962 manual, 160 stations or stops have been discontinued. The passenger stops are identified with the abbreviation PSGR following a station name, discontinued ones are retained as a historical reference and identified with a double mathematical sign (++) preceding the station name.

PUBLIC OPEN SPACE AND RECREATION AREAS

The federal, state, county, and municipal open spaces and recreational areas in Maryland are tabulated under a separate listing in this third edition Appendix to the Manual of Coordinates for the first time, irrespective of size or popularity. Acreage, type of area, accommodations, or descriptions have been deleted to make the listing serve as a convenient source to quickly locate the place name within the State.

Two of the mentioned levels of ownership for open spaces or recreational areas are identified with the words National and State appearing in the name. National refers to areas owned and maintained by the United States Government, whereas the word State refers to the State of Maryland. County areas are identified by the abbreviation CNTY appended to the place name. Municipal ownership can be recognized by the absence of the words National, State, or abbreviation CNTY.

1960 POPULATION: INCORPORATED AND UNINCORPORATED PLACES

This list of population statistics taken from the 1960 U. S. Census of Population includes 214 incorporated and unincorporated places in Maryland, 53 more than the 161 places listed in the 1950 Census. The figures range from a low of 5 for Highland Beach in Anne Arundel County to 939,024 for Baltimore City. Because the 1970 census of population statistics are approximately a year and a half away from this printing of the manual, some indication of Maryland's population trend is in order. This trend can be shown from the U. S. Bureau of Census estimate of total statewide resident population as of July 1, 1967 to be an 18.7 per cent increase over the 1960 census, or 579,000 more than the 3,100,689 population of 1960. Natural increase accounted for 337,000 and migrations into the state accounted for 242,000.
